

MGT 595 : Seminar in Management

The course is a culminating experience in the master's program in Organization Management. Major issues of theory and practice of management in the context of contemporary organizations are discussed. Students identify and analyze aspects of management, administration, decision making and problem solving in a particular organization and design and implement a plan addressing the identified problem or issue.

Prerequisites

MGT-555, MGT-561, MGT-651, MGT-656 , completion of 24 credits